Date of transcription 7/22/96

PRISCILLA K. SALYERS, Investigative Assistant, United States Secret Service was interviewed at her office located at 4013 Northwest Expressway, Suite 650, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. At the time of the bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building, SALYERS was employed with the U.S. Customs Service. After being advised of the official identity of the interviewing agents SALYERS provided the following information.

SALYERS provided essentially the same information she had provided in previous interviews. In a previous interview, SALYERS advised sometime prior to the bombing, possibly a couple weeks or months, two white males came into the U.S. Customs office with one inquiring about a job. Later, after the bombing SALYERS advised she attended a court hearing and observed TIMOTHY MCVEIGH to be present. Based on MCVEIGH's mannerisms and looks, SALYERS has no doubt it was MCVEIGH who came to the Customs office inquiring about a job. SALYERS was not sure, but believed this occurred in December, 1994, prior to Christmas.

SALYERS advised she did not pay much attention to the second individual, but described him as a white male, with dark hair and a smaller, more wiry build than MCVEIGH. SALYERS advised she has seen TERRY NICHOLS on television and she is sure this second individual was not NICHOLS. SALYERS has also seen MICHAEL FORTIER on television, and said that she is not sure if FORTIER was this second individual.
